The program also addressed the specific needs of girl students, covering topics such as gender sensitization workshops and counseling services. Updates to the syllabus were shared, considering emerging trends and industry demands. The significance of internships and practical exposure was highlighted, with ongoing collaborations facilitating internship opportunities. The program resulted in enhanced communication, identified areas for improvement, and motivated students to engage in internships. Overall, it created a more inclusive and progressive educational environment.

Workshop on N-LIST and College Website

The Department of Library and Information Science organized an awareness program for staff and students on two important resources: N-List and our college website. N-List is a digital library initiative offering access to a vast collection of e-books, e-journals, databases, and educational materials. The program aimed to introduce N-List as a research and learning tool, demonstrate accessing it from our college network and remotely, explore its databases, and emphasize the benefits of e-book and e-journal access. Additionally, the awareness session highlighted the significance of our college website as a central hub for information and encouraged regular visits for updates and announcements. The program's benefits included enhanced research capabilities, expanded learning opportunities, time and cost efficiency, and improved academic performance. This initiative strives to foster a culture of continuous learning and academic excellence within our institution.
